

Get to know me!

How did I get into music?

I've always had a passion for music since I was a little girl. It all began at the age of 4 years old, singing away in a quaint little kitchen in the middle of the country. It was then my love for singing and everything musical has blossomed. Since then, I've dedicated my whole life to building my career as both a singer and vocal coach. This allows me to explore both creativity and help others embrace their voice.

Performing

I always struggled with stage fright since I was a very little girl. The thought of feeling eyes on me would send me into a dizzy and sweaty spiral. Through years of experience, I learned how to find the balance. Having some nerves is normal but it should never hold you back from sharing your sound with the world.

My band 'Porge'

Porge's debut single, Pretty Problem, dropped in April 2025, and it's bringing a refreshing wave of vulnerability and indie vibes to the Irish music scene. Imagine if sadness and beauty had a baby—well, that's Porge in a nutshell. But don't worry; it's the artistic kind of sadness, the type that makes you want to cry while sipping herbal tea in a cosy jumper. Porge consists of both me and my very talented friend Willow Leavey. Between the two of us, we ensured Porge would capture an avant-garde style with deep messages embedded in both the lyrics and composition.

So what are my life goals?

If I'm being very transparent, I've always been the type of person who has endless goals and projects. I enjoy a life with constant challenges. Once you reach the next mountain, you see the taller ones you have yet to climb. I love facing the world head-on and building my career, personal connections, and my presence in the music industry. I truly cannot wait to live my life and grab whatever opportunities come my way.

Overall, Vocal Evolution Studios is a direct reflection of my personality. It is creative, fun, analytical, comprehensive, relaxed, and a safe space for people to explore a creative side of them they are yet to discover.
